The Non-Violent Resistance (NVR) programme aims to improve the parent/child relationship; enable parents to become a positive, authoritative presence in their child's life; learn to de-escalate difficult situations; take a firm stance against challenging behaviour and develop a robust network of supporters.

The programme uses the principles of NVR to address violent, destructive and harmful behaviours in relation to children and adolescents whilst re-establishing a warm, loving relationship and maintaining parental presence with their child.
